Prakash Amte: Born in the family where social work is a legacy, Prakash Amte's contribution to the society is significant. His father, popularly known as Baba Amte, was named "Abhay Sadhu" by Gandhi ji and was very popular for helping out the people suffering from leprosy. Following his father's footsteps, Prakash Amte has achieved the impossible task of successfully running a hospital in a place where there was no electricity at all. Dr. Prakash Amte and his wife moved to Hemal Kasa and helped the "Madia Gond" tribe in the forests of Gadchiroli district. They have established a school, a hospital, and a rescued animal shelter home where they take care of different animals like leopards, sloth, bears, snakes, birds etc. Dr. Amte's life shows us how there is still a hope for humanity amongst the dark elements like corruptions, jealousy etc. Working hard towards your good even in extreme conditions can lead towards the success.
